NEW DUTY TO FURTHER

INTERIM ADVICE NOTE

FOR

RELEVANT AUTHORITIES IN THE KENT DOWNS

March 2024

Background

In December 2023, a new statutory duty was placed on all public bodies and statutory undertakers which requires that 'In exercising or performing any functions in relation to, or so as to affect, land in an area of outstanding natural beauty in England, a relevant authority must seek to further the purpose of conserving and enhancing the natural beauty of the area of outstanding natural beauty'.

The new duty is applicable to all public and statutory bodies and other 'relevant authorities'. A list of some of the organisations that it applies to that operate within the Kent Downs National Landscape is provided at the end of this Advice Note. It is a statutory requirement to comply with the duty and it applies to all decisions and actions that may affect the Kent Downs National Landscape, not just those relating to planning, countryside and environmental issues.

The advice note is intended to provide guidance on the new duty, its implication for organisations that are covered by it, and how they can ensure that they have complied with their statutory duty. More specific guidance on how the new duty

The Legislation

The Levelling-up and Regeneration Act (2023), which became effective on 26th December 2023, amended section 85 of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000, creating a new duty on public bodies.

The amendment, which only affects England, is as follows:

Countryside and Rights of Way (CRoW) Act 2000, Section 85 - General duty of public bodies:

"Any relevant authority exercising or performing any functions in relation to, or so as to affect, land in an area of outstanding natural beauty in England must seek to further the purpose of conserving and enhancing the natural beauty of the area of outstanding natural beauty."

The amendment replaces the previous 'Duty of Regard' set out at Section 85 of the CroW Act and is seen as a strengthening of this, as confirmed in the Government's Explanatory Note to the Amendment to the Bill, where it is advised that 'the clause strengthens the duty on certain public authorities when carrying out their functions in relation to these landscapes....'.

The Levelling Up Act (at s245) also includes a provision that allows the Secretary of State to issue regulations setting out how relevant authorities should comply with the new duty. However, this is a discretionary power, and compliance with the new duty is not dependent on those regulations being published, which it is understood will be unlikely to be until 2026 at the earliest.

Expectations on Relevant Authorities

Relevant authorities must be able to demonstrate that they have complied with the statutory new duty. They should be able to clearly show how they have sought to further the conservation and enhancement of natural beauty in any decision or action that impacts or could potentially impact on the Kent Downs National Landscape. The new duty is intended to ensure that the purposes for which the Kent Downs has been designated as an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty are both recognised as an essential consideration and pro-actively progressed in reaching decisions or undertaking activities that impact on it.

In line with advice from Natural England (see below), the proposed measures to further the purposes should explore what is possible in addition to avoiding and mitigating the effects of any development or action.

The way in which the duty has been complied with should be recorded and open to scrutiny.

Consideration should be given to making reference to the duty in annual reports or similar publications, and also to issuing statements of how the duty to seek to further the purposes of the designated area will be complied with.

Demonstrations of compliance with the duties may be monitored by the Kent Downs National Landscape Team. The Kent Downs Partnership will bring any significant contraventions to the attention of Natural England, who may in turn report to DEFRA.

Consultation or notification of intended actions to the Kent Downs National Landscape Team by relevant authorities does not constitute compliance with the new duty. The Team does not have available capacity to advise on all potential actions by relevant authorities and will normally only be able to advise on the most significant activities that impact on the National Landscape. It is the responsibility of relevant authorities to assess and record how they have complied with the duty.

Guidance on complying with the new duty

It is anticipated that interim guidance on the new duty will be published by DEFRA soon. In the meantime, the following advice has been provided by Natural England in respect of the new duty^[1]:

It is anticipated that the government will provide guidance on how the duty should be applied in due course. In the meantime, and without prejudicing that guidance, Natural England advises that:

- the duty to 'seek to further' is an active duty, not a passive one. Any relevant authority must take all reasonable steps to explore how the statutory purposes of the protected landscape (A National Park, the Broads, or an AONB) can be furthered;

- The new duty underlines the importance of avoiding harm to the statutory purposes of protected landscapes but also to seek to further the conservation and enhancement of a protected landscape. That goes beyond mitigation and like for like measures and replacement. A relevant authority must be able to demonstrate with reasoned evidence what measures can be taken to further the statutory purpose.*
- The proposed measures to further the statutory purposes of a protected landscape, should explore what is possible in addition to avoiding and mitigating the effects of the development, and should be appropriate, proportionate to the type and scale of the development and its implications for the area and effectively secured. Natural England's view is that the proposed measures should align with and help to deliver the aims and objectives of the designated landscape's statutory management plan. The relevant protected landscape team/body should be consulted.*

As advocated by Natural England in the above guidance, assessing proposed actions against the aims, objectives and principles of the Kent Downs Management Plan, will assist relevant authorities in considering whether and how the duty is complied with. A component part of the Management Plan is the Kent Downs Landscape Character Assessment Update which should also be referred to. A range of further guidance documents produced by the Kent Downs National Landscape and published on the website may also be of help.

It is the clear expectation that relevant authorities shall make careful reference to the Management Plan and its supporting guidance when exercising the new duty.

The Kent Downs AONB Management Plan

The Management Plan describes the special qualities and components of the Kent Downs National Landscape, these being aspects of the landscape that are particularly important to the designation and are therefore likely to warrant particular consideration. It sets out the policy for the conservation, enhancement and management of the National Landscape in a series of aims, objectives and principles.

The Kent Downs AONB Landscape Character Assessment \(LCA\) Update

This document divides the Kent Downs National Landscape into 13 discrete character areas, describing the key characteristics that makes each of these unique. A set of landscape management recommendations are provided for each area which may provide assistance in considering how the purposes of designation can be furthered .

Additional Guidance documents

A number of additional guidance documents have been produced by the Kent Downs National Landscape Team that provide more specialist guidance on how the Kent Downs can be conserved and enhanced. These include:
